

Machine translation is a subfield of computational linguistics.
It uses large neural networks to translate text.